The Chartered Institute of Stockbrokers on Tuesday announced the election of Mr Olatunde Amolegbe as its new president and chairman of the governing council, succeeding Mr Adedapo Adekoje after the institute's virtual annual general meeting.

Amolegbe, described as an accomplished investment analyst, and a fellow of the institute, was until his election the first vice president.

Mr Oluwole Adeosun, the Second Vice President, became the First Vice President while Mr Oluropo Dada, the Chief Executive Officer, Network Capital, emerged as the new second vice president.

in his valedictory speech, Adesoji who assumed office as the president in April 2018 said his administration was able to record the landmark achievements despite the inclement operating environment.
